PRESIDENT WARNS AGAINST UN-NECESSARY DRAINS ON TREASURY

By ROBERT MOOREFIELD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Jan. 29.—(UP)—Addressing the last scheduled business meeting of his administration, President Coolidge last night expressed satisfaction with his economic program, pointing out at the same time that national prosperity could continue only through constructive economy in government.

The president warned against unnecessary drains on the federal treasury. He called attention to the increasing costs of state and local governments.

"The margin between prosperity and depression is always very small," Mr. Coolidge said at one point. "A decrease of less than ten per cent in the income of the nation would produce a deficit in our present budget. The cost of state and local governments are rapidly mounting."

He predicted this statement by pointing out costs of state and local governments had increased from $3,900,000,000 in 1921 to $7,931,000,000 in 1927, and continued:

"This is such a heavy drain on the earnings of the people that it is the greatest menace to the continuance of prosperity. It is the reason that further commitments by the national government for any new projects not absolutely necessary should be faithfully resisted."

At another point, explaining the tendency of greater expenses in government operation, the president said:

"A short time ago there were pending before the congress, and seriously being advocated, bills which would have redoubled our annual cost of government."

Had there not been a constant insistence upon a policy of rigid economy, many of these bills would have become law."

Mr. Coolidge pointed out that since the inauguration of the budget system the public debt had been reduced $6,667,000,000, and that the saving in interest from this and refunding operations was $963,000,000.

He said further that four tax reductions had returned to the people about $2,000,000,000 a year which would have been required had the revenue act of 1918 remained in force and that two and one half million people had been entirely relieved from federal taxation. He warned that the government might end the year with a deficit unless expenses were curtailed.

He advocated a continuance of the strictest economy in federal operations, and called upon bureau heads to inaugurate the "federal casualty club" to offset the possible deficit by leaving unfilled all bureau vacancies until June 30. This, he said, would save about $12,500,000, a sum which might balance the budget.

Memorial continental hall was filled to capacity. The program was broadcast over a national radio hookup.

FINAL VOTE ON CRUISER BILL EXPECTED BY FEB. 4

SENATE AGREES TO LIMIT DEBATE ON THE SUBJECT

UNANIMOUS CONSENT IS GAINED BY THE CURTIS PROPOSAL

Washington, Jan. 29.—(UP)—By unanimous consent the senate this afternoon entered into an agreement to limit debate on the pending cruiser building program in such a way that a final vote is to be expected before adjournment Monday, Feb. 4.

The proposal follows several unsuccessful attempts to limit debate and force a vote earlier. It was proposed by Vice President-elect Curtis, republican floor leader.

The agreement will prevent any possible filibuster against the cruiser bill and will clear the closing of legislation which had developed about it during the last few days.

Curtis told the senate it was his intention to take up pending appropriation bills any time between now and Monday, provided no senator desires to speak on the cruiser bill.

Threats were made by republican leaders that unless the agreement was accepted by opponents of the bill they would seek night sessions beginning tonight. In view of the agreement, the proposed night session was called off.

While no definite time for voting is set by the agreement, the limitation will prevent any senator or group of senators from delaying a vote beyond Monday.

STATUS OF FEDERAL AGENTS AT ST. CLOUD

St. Paul, Jan. 29.—(UP)—S. B. Qvale, northwest prohibition administrator, today denied that Joe Albers and Dennis Burns, federal agents at St. Cloud had failed to successfully pass their examinations for the service.

PUNISHING COLD WAVE NEARS END

GOVERNMENT FORECAST PREDICTS RISING TEMPERATURES

OVER 192 HOURS SUB-ZERO WEATHER CLAIMS LIVES OF OVER 12 PEOPLE

St. Paul, Jan. 29.—(UP)—One of the most punishing cold waves in recent years was believed near an end in the northwest today when government forecasters predicted rising temperatures for Wednesday.

The expected relief followed more than 192 hours of sub-zero weather which claimed the lives of more than a dozen persons, caused untold suffering, and hampered transportation to an extensive degree.

The frozen body of Gildo Riva, 60, was found at the rear of a St. Paul residence today, where it had apparently lain for 10 hours.

Riva met the fate common to eight or ten others in the northwest during the past eight days when the temperature remained constantly far below zero. Others died from ailments aggravated by the cold.

Canada with temperatures which ranged up to 50 degrees below, suffered little more than Minnesota, Montana, Wisconsin and the Dakotas where the daily average was approximately 18 degrees below.

Northern Minnesota remained cold today. At Brainerd and other northern points it was 30. Here, however, the mercury had crawled above the zero mark during the "heat of the day," and there were indications of still more favorable weather.

The protracted siege was believed to have broken all records since the unusually severe weather in 1918.

No immediate want of food is anticipated as Grand Trunk officials say the ferries are all well provisioned.

NO COMMITTEE TO BE NAMED TO INVESTIGATE

GOV. CHRISTIANSON MAKES A STATEMENT IN REGARD TO MATTER

INSTITUTIONS WIDELY DISCUSSED BY SENATE FINANCE COMMITTEE

By HECTOR PERRIER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

St. Paul, Jan. 29.—Governor Theodore Christianson informed the United Press today that there was absolutely no truth to reports that he might ask for the appointment of a legislative committee to investigate conditions at state institutions.

The institutions have been widely discussed by the senate finance committee during the past week in an effort to ascertain if the Big Three and the board of control agreed on what steps should be taken to relieve reportedly crowded conditions.

The Big Three and control board know the conditions, it was said, and are making every effort to give state patients the best possible care.

At the present time there may be unsatisfactory situations in some institutions, the administration representatives said, but these are temporary and are partly due to agricultural setbacks, although adequate additions are made where they are considered necessary.

It was obvious at committee meetings Monday that the board is anxious to encourage penal institutions to enlarge their manufacturing activities. C. J. Svensen, chairman, recommended that the St. Cloud reformatory be equipped to manufacture automobile license plates and highway markers and he recommended that $10,000 be appropriated for the establishment of a rope manufacturing plant at Stillwater penitentiary.

Sensors J. D. Sullivan, St. Cloud, and James A. Carley, Plainview, were appointed to make a study of the reformatory proposal.

Meanwhile at the night session on Monday several important matters came up for consideration.

The senate adopted a resolution by Senator A. J. Rockne, Zumbrota, calling upon the state rural credit bureau to answer 18 questions relative to its financial affairs.

Sensor J. H. Hougen, Crookston, introduced a bill which would permit peace officers to inspect "at any reasonable time" establishments where beverages are sold under license.

A bill was introduced in the house by Rep. Thomas Kernan, St. Cloud, and others, which would relieve voters of announcing their party affiliations at primary elections by changes in the ballot laws.

JAMES PRICE OF BOSTON RED SOX COMMITS SUICIDE

Boston, Jan. 29.—(UP)—James Price, secretary of the Boston Red Sox, committed suicide by cutting his throat at Fenway park today.

Price, one of the most popular officials in Boston baseball circles, was found on the grandstand runway at the park. His throat had been slashed with a razor.

Harry Mason, traveling secretary for the Red Sox, who discovered Price, notified some men who were working nearby and the secretary was taken to city hospital. He was dead on arrival.

Price, who was about 60 years old, had been secretary of the Red Sox since December, 1923. He was a former newspaper man.

Friends reported that he had been in poor health for several months and believed he killed himself in a fit of despondency. Price had been working as usual, however, and went to his office this morning.

Meanwhile at the night session on Monday several important matters came up for consideration.

The senate adopted a resolution by Senator A. J. Rockne, Zumbrota, calling upon the state rural credit bureau to answer 18 questions relative to its financial affairs.

Senator J. H. Hogen, Crookston, introduced a bill which would permit peace officers to inspect "at any reasonable time" establishments where beverages are sold under license.

A bill was introduced in the house by Rep. Thomas Kernan, St. Cloud, and others, which would relieve voters of announcing their party affiliations at primary elections by changes in the ballot laws.

JAMES PRICE OF BOSTON RED SOX COMMITS SUICIDE

Boston, Jan. 29.—James Price, secretary of the Boston Red Sox, committed suicide by cutting his throat at Fenway park today.

Price, one of the most popular officials in Boston baseball circles, was found on the grandstand runway at the park. His throat had been slashed with a razor.

Harry Mason, traveling secretary for the Red Sox, who discovered Price, notified some men who were working nearby and the secretary was taken to city hospital. He was dead on arrival.

Price, who was about 60 years old, had been secretary of the Red Sox since December, 1923. He was a former newspaper man.

Friends reported that he had been in poor health for several months and believed he killed himself in a fit of despondency. Price had been working as usual, however, and went to his office this morning.

ATTENTION TO DUTY MEANT DEMOTION

New York, Jan. 29.—(UP)—Motorcycle Patrolman Michael Curry, who yesterday arrested the personal chauffeur for Police Commissioner Grover Whalen on a traffic violation, was transferred to patrol duty in the Bronx today.

Secret service agents in Miami, Fla., arrested three men for plot to assassinate President-elect Hoover upon his arrival in Florida, but were forced to release them for lack of evidence. In this picture the next occupant of the White House is shown, unaware of plot, receiving Miami's tumultuous welcome. (Associated Press)

BYRD RAISES MORALE OF MEN ON EXPEDITION

"This is a Changed Ship With Commander Byrd Aboard," Quin Blackburn Writes Home

IN LAND OF MIDNIGHT SUN

Brainerd Boy Praises Efficiency of His Chief; All Eat at Same Mess Table

"This is a changed ship with Commander Byrd aboard," Quin A. Blackburn writes to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas T. Blackburn, 824 North 9th street from the Auxiliary Barque, "City of New York."

Mr. Blackburn who is a member of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition highly praises the leadership of his commander and tells in brief a few of the happenings in "the land of the midnight sun."

His letter, dated December 9, 1928 follows:

Dear Mother and Dad:

Well! How is everything with you in Brainerd? Hope you are both well and happy.

After a hectic week in Dunedin, during which we were very hospitably entertained by the local residents, we finally got under way on the final stage of our voyage. Now we are down in app. Lat. 63° S., Long. 170° W., and are among the icebergs this morning. They are practically all of the flat-topped type showing their source as being the Barrier. Some, however, are castellated and many show caverns due to wave erosion.

The temperature is steadily decreasing averaging about 33° F. today. Several snow-squalls were encountered and stiff winds were much in evidence. They changed their direction frequently necessitating much bracing around of the yards and other work in connection with the sails.

Large number of birds are constantly in attendance, among the general noted being albatross, sooty albatross, several species of petrels and cape pigeons. All are masters of flight, and it goes without saying that one can watch their flight with much interest and pleasure.

Since leaving Dunedin we have been in tow of the Eleanor Bolling, a steel ship belonging to the Expedition, which is being used to help transport the supplies and planes. On the 7th the wind was between 35 and 45 miles per hour with the consequent result that a considerable sea was kicked up. This caused a part of our deck-load of dogs and stores to shift and kept most of the gang working like beavers all day. The matter was complicated through the breaking of the tow line bridge on the Bolling. Next day the weather moderated and after several hours work we managed to get the tow line connected in proper order again.

When we encounter the pack-ice (which should be in a few days) we are slated to meet the Norwegian Whaler "Larsen" which will take us in tow after we have taken on coal from the Bolling in the still waters of the pack. Then the Bolling will return to Dunedin for a load of supplies (and incidentally she will have out-going mail aboard).

This is a changed ship with Commander Byrd aboard—he joined us at Dunedin along with Wm. Haines, the Meteorologist, my Chief, Gould, the Geologist, several other scientists, all the dog-men and all the pilots. We are now having better eats, all discrimination has been cancelled and all eat at the same mess table. The commander is certainly a wonderful leader and everybody swears by him (figuratively speaking). We are now on 4 hours and off 3, instead of on 4 and off 4 as previously. Consequently all is now running smoothly and more or less efficiently.

At Dunedin we were issued clothing and equipment (the first I had received) and some of us received ice-cream as well. There surely was a lot of goods to be stowed in a very limited space. However, I have solved the difficulty by putting everything in my bunk (an upper) and sleeping every night on a folding (Gold Medal) cot, which is stowed away when not in use.

Just learned that tomorrow we are due to meet the Larsen at noon; so evidently this letter will soon be on its way.

It is past my bed time and must be up at 4, so the end. We now have only about a couple hours of night and then it does not get completely dark. Soon we will be with the mid-night sun.

Best wishes and love from your affectionate son.

BYRD RAISES MORALE OF MEN ON EXPEDITION

"This is a Changed Ship With Commander Byrd Aboard," Quin Blackburn Writes Home

IN LAND OF MIDNIGHT SUN

Brainerd Boy Praises Efficiency of His Chief; All Eat at Same Mess Table

"This is a changed ship with Commander Byrd aboard," Quin A. Blackburn writes to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas T. Blackburn, 824 North 9th street from the Auxiliary Barque, "City of New York."

Mr. Blackburn who is a member of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition highly praises the leadership of his commander and tells in brief a few of the happenings in "the land of the midnight sun."

His letter, dated December 9, 1928 follows:

Dear Mother and Dad:

Well! How is everything with you in Brainerd? Hope you are both well and happy.

After a hectic week in Dunedin, during which we were very hospitably entertained by the local residents, we finally got under way on the final stage of our voyage. Now we are down in app. Lat. 63° S. Long. 170° W., and are among the icebergs this morning. They are practically all of the flat-topped type showing their source as being the Barrier. Some, however, are castellated and many show caverns due to wave erosion.

The temperature is steadily decreasing averaging about 33° F. today. Several snow-squalls were encountered and stiff winds were much in evidence. They changed their direction frequently necessitating much bracing around of the yards and other work in connection with the sails.

Large number of birds are constantly in attendance, among the general noted being albatross, sooty albatross, several species of petrels and cape pigeons. All are masters of flight, and it goes without saying that one can watch their flight with much interest and pleasure.

Since leaving Dunedin we have been in tow of the Eleanor Bolling, a steel ship belonging to the Expedition, which is being used to help transport the supplies and planes. On the 7th the wind was between 35 and 45 miles per hour with the consequent result that a considerable sea was kicked up. This caused a part of our deck-load of dogs and stores to shift and kept most of the gang working like beavers all day. The matter was complicated through the breaking of the tow line and the Bolling. Next day the weather moderated and after several hours work we managed to get the tow line connected in proper order again.

When we encounter the pack-ice (which should be in a few days) we are slated to meet the Norwegian Whaler "Larsen" which will take us in tow after we have taken on coal from the Bolling in the still waters of the pack. Then the Bolling will return to Dunedin for a load of supplies (and incidentally she will have out-going mail aboard).

This is a changed ship with Commander Byrd aboard—he joined us at Dunedin along with Wm. Haines, the Meteorologist, my Chief, Gould, the Geologist, several other scientists, all the dog-men and all the pilots. We are now having better eats, all discrimination has been cancelled and all eat at the same mess table. The commander is certainly a wonderful leader and everybody swears by him (figuratively speaking). We are now on 4 hours and off 3, instead of on 4 and off 4 as previously. Consequently all is now running smoothly and more or less efficiently.

At Dunedin we were issued clothing and equipment (the first I had received) and some of us received ice-equipment as well. There surely was a lot of goods to be stowed in a very limited space. However, I have solved the difficulty by putting everything in my bunk (an upper) and sleeping every night on a folding (Gold Medal) cot, which is stowed away when not in use.

Just learned that tomorrow we are due to meet the Larsen at noon; so evidently this letter will soon be on its way.

It is past my bed time and must be up at 4, so the end. We now have only about a couple hours of night and then it does not get completely dark. Soon we will be with the mid-night sun.

Best wishes and love from your affectionate son,

MR. KASCH OFFERS A $2.50

PRIZE FOR TEAM NICKNAME

NEW JERSEYS MAY BE ADORNED
WITH WINNING NAME

How would you like to win a $2.50 gold piece? Mr. Kasch, athletic mentor at B. H. S. has expressed his desire for a "nickname" for the Brainerd athletic teams. If you are interested in procuring the little piece of gold just hand in your choice of the names and wait hopefully. If your choice happens to be that of the judges, the gold piece is yours. Simple isn't it?

The type of name desired is one that is suggested by the locality of Brainerd or of some animal common to this part of the country. In fact, any name that fits but it must be short. It must be suitable to be reproduced on the front of athletic jerseys. For example the Minneapolis teams are called the "Millers," the Hamline teams the "Pipers," the Minnesota team the "Gophers" and so on.

If you intend to enter the contest think that matter over. Details and rules will follow in next week's paper.

FRENCH CLUB TO SELL
TICKETS FOR DECLAM

Last evening the French Club enjoyed a business and social meeting. Donald Geist, president, called the meeting to order, and the minutes were read by Edith Heald, secretary. Miss Taylor announced that the French Club could undertake the selling of the tickets to the Declamatory Contest, which are to be 10c, to be held here in the early part of February. This project was undertaken by the Semper Paratus last year. Every student is expected to buy one.

After the short business meeting a most enjoyable program was given. Kathryn Sheets, accompanied by Miss Rickard at the piano, sang "Roses of Yesterday, and My Bouquet of Memories." Second on the program was two violin solos rendered by Victor Bourgeois, accompanied by Kathryn Allbright at the piano. He played "Sonny Boy, and To Do the Rassoos." Another entertainer was Howard Giles and his trombone; he played two selections. Miss Rickard played a gentle accompaniment on the piano. Last but not least were three readings and a poem. All proved very humorous after once translated. Miss Taylor gave these first in French and then in English. Many games were played after the program, the leading ones were flinch and bunco. After the games refreshments, consisting of sandwiches, fruit salad and lemonade, were served. The refreshments proved to be the climax of the evening after which everyone left for home very tired but very happy.

AFFORD INSPIRATION

How'd you like to be the janitors when wintry breezes blow,
 And the mercury is marking about seventy below?
 They're out before it's light,
 Thro' the drifts their way to fight,
 And they work until the night,
 Every throw.

When the Juniors give a party, or the Seniors grand
 Again the faithful servitors must be on hand.

Extra sweeping! Extra fires!
 Are they willing? Who inquires?
 They must meet with our desires,
 Understand!

Yet who ever heard them whimper, heard them scold or threaten war?

No, we heard their cheery whistle and we like them, for
 They call most of us by name.
 Cheer our fortunes, hide our shame
 Proper candidates for fame—
 Jolly Janitors.

FRESHIES BARRED BY
HI-Y CONSTITUTION

The ratification of the new constitution was the chief business before the Senior Hi-Y club at the weekly meeting last Wednesday.

The session opened with the usual reading of the minutes and a report by the treasurer. After a short debate it was agreed that three tardies were to equal one absence and might be counted as such. Next in order was the reading and ratification of the new constitution.

The first two articles concerning the name and affiliations of the club were accepted without being challenged, but the first section of the third, dealing with the requirements for admittance of new members was hotly and lengthily contested. After a fiery debate lasting almost 45 minutes a vote showed that a majority of the club favored leaving the Frosh out of the club rather than admitting them as the constitution committee had recommended.

The constitution was laid on the table because of a lack of time, and the meeting adjourned.

EVANGELINE DOES

THE PAUL REVERE

WITH APOLOGIES TO LONG-
FELLOW

Listen friend schoolmate, and you shall hear
 Of a girl whose fame's gone far and near.

On the twentieth of April in twenty nine,
 For Evangeline Croats we all did pine.

She said, "Friend, if annuals are sold tonight,
 Hang a lantern aloft as a signal light.

In the assembly window where all can see,
 And I across the street will be.

Ready to run in wild alarm
 To a certain excited farmer's farm."

Then she said goodnight and with stately tread,
 Silently towards her home she fled.

Meanwhile her friend, through alley and street
 Wonders and watches with eager ears,

Till in the darkness around her she hears
 The sound of someone shedding tears.

She knows this means the annuals are sold.
 This sad tale to her friend must be told.

She climbed the stairs with stealthy tread,
 To the assembly chamber overhead.

By the trembling stairways, steep and tall,
 To the highest window in the wall.

There she paused a moment to look down,
 Silently o'er the roofs of the town.

Evangeline stood across the street,
 Her heart near stifled her with its beat.

She looks at the assembly, and lo as she gazes,
 A light in the Assembly window blazes.

You know the rest: It's as Carl Zapffe said,
 To Gilbert Lake she turned and fled.

But her death was not, as you think in vain,
 For the twenty nine annual is on sale again!

So profit my friend, by her demise
 Pay your fifty cents and show you're wise.

After a great deal of coaxing, persuasion and cajoling—why they even went so far as to plead!—the Sophomores have at last managed to pay $14 on their debt for the Brainerd Annual. The drive for this money is not being continued for the benefit of those who have paid their quota—certainly not—it is to remind you who have not paid this reasonable amount of 25 cents to get it in to our treasurer immediately so that the more active members of our class may be able to materialize their plans for picnics, parties and other means of entertainment.

Miss Sophia Brending, graduate of the Brainerd high school, 1925, who is now working for the Los Angeles Examiner, Los Angeles, is one of the many outsiders who are sending their money for a Brainerd Annual.

BRAINERD DRUBS LITTLE FALLS
BUT LOSES TO ST. CLOUD TECHSENIORS TAKE NOTE ON NOTABLES FOR ANNUAL

Last Friday afternoon found the seniors with their heads together—really concentrating more than they have done for a whole week (according to the faculty)! The purpose of the meeting was to vote on senior statistics for the annual—such as brightest boy, best-looking girl, etc. Although the advisors thought individual opinions on the questions at hand would be best, quite a bit of cooperation seemed to be necessary to settle most of the issues. The "honors" seemed to be pretty well divided because everyone put in a good hard half hour or more "trying to make up his mind." Each senior was also requested to list all activities entered during his high school career—this information also being for the annual. Incidentally, it was announced that no results of the voting would be revealed until all seniors had paid fifty cents on their annuals.

It was rather miraculous the way everyone stayed on after the business meeting was over. Here's the secret! Suddenly, two big boxes of chocolates mysteriously appeared and we understand that Miss Tornstrom and Mr. Elden were the donors. All present appreciated the surprise very much.

COMMERCIAL CLUB
TO COLLECT PAPER

The second annual business meeting of the Commercial club was held in the Commercial rooms at the city hall, Wednesday.

The question of raising money, in order that we might pay for our page in the Brainerd Annual, was discussed. It was finally decided that on February 13, the club would serve wiener sandwiches and coffee in the evening at the city hall. The food would be solicited from the members and everybody would be welcome to come.

Miss Ruthe also suggested that the club collect old papers and magazines and sell them. "Although many considered it a 'kids trick' it got after in the right manner a good deal of money could be made." A committee consisting of Harry Goedderz, Elwood Anderson and Arnold Jensen, was appointed to look into the matter.

After the meeting, the members adjourned to the main hall where bunco was played. Genevieve Jenkins was high scorer for the evening.

LACK OF TEAMWORK PROMI-NENT IN LOCAL PLAY

The blue and white cagemen made a 500 per cent record over the week and by winning from Little Falls quint, Friday, by a score of 32-17 and by losing to the St. Cloud Tech asketeers on Saturday 28-17.

In the first game the home towners had a rather easy time, playing a team composed mostly of substitute material four regulars having been lost by the semester ruling. Brainerd's scoring was distributed almost equally among the first five and in the third quarter the substitutes came in for their part.

In the Tech contest, Brainerd met some real opposition and in this game as in the previous encounters, the main fault was the lack of teamwork. The local aggregation found difficulty in locating the hoop but the Tech players seemed to be able to sink the ball into the meshes from any angle. If the Brainerd team had had adequate practice facilities the score would, undoubtedly, have been much closer. Wise and Fuller led the scoring for Brainerd while Carlson, rangy center, carried off first honors for Tech with six baskets.

This week's game is with Wadena on Friday and on Tuesday Brainerd goes to Bemidji to tackle the north woods five.

LATIN CONTRACTS TO FEATURE LATIN TODAY

Latin will invade practically all the classes from General Science for the Freshmen, to English four, for the Seniors with Biology, Geometry, Physics and Chemistry in between. In all these subjects Latin terms are used and Miss O'Brien will give points using the contract system, for any words of Latin derivation ordinarily used in these classes which will be listed by regular Latin students.

In Latin I, points will be awarded for Latin terms used in General Science, for Latin mottoes of States; for Latin verbs with lists of English derivations; for stories written in Latin with illustrations; for pictures illustrating Latin sentences or descriptions; and for Latin derivatives in every day English.

To earn points in Latin II, one may do all of the following: Make booklets containing pictures of Roman gods or goddesses, stone buildings, plans of Roman houses, Roman baths, or the Forum (the last three with detailed descriptions; make posters or charts) pictures of mammals with the Scientific Latin names; bring in Latin abbreviations with English translation; make Roman lamps for handicraft; translate stories; work out problems at the desk during the last five minutes of class; write Latin stories.

Virgil students may make mythological illustration booklets; write a passage of Latin in meter or write a myth in Latin; develop a myth as a scenario or movie; make posters, illustrating mythology in advertising; or make a collection of lines from leading material, showing Vergilian or classical influence.

Milford W. Downie, Jr., last year's editor of the Brainerdian, and at present a student of the University of Minnesota, visited school Monday. Milford still shows an interest in the welfare of the paper, which was once under his efficient guidance, and has prepared a cut which will be run in next week's issue.

YE EDITOR

As we look over the Brainerdians for the past semester, we notice columns and columns of stories written by aspiring young journalists who have received no recognition or reward for their work. They have attended meetings regularly and handed well written articles in on time with no thought of reward other than that of helping the paper and the school. The Brainerdian sincerely wishes there were staff positions for the following, each of whom really deserves more than mere recognition: Helen Sheets, Mildred Johnson, Mary Hawkins, Alice Nolan, Margaret Vadnais, Orris Larson, Ross Olmsted, Edman Jernberg and Carl Zapffe.

It is hoped that there will be enough vacancies in the Brainerdian next year to make each one a reporter or an editor; but they must, for the present at least, be content with the appreciation of the whole staff.

MR. KASCH OFFERS A $2.50

PRIZE FOR TEAM NICKNAME

NEW JERSEYS MAY BE ADORNED
WITH WINNING NAME

How would you like to win a $2.50 gold piece? Mr. Kasch, athletic mentor at B. H. S. has expressed his desire for a "nickname" for the Brainerd athletic teams. If you are interested in procuring the little piece of gold just hand in your choice of the names and wait hopefully. If your choice happens to be that of the judges, the gold piece is yours. Simple isn't it?

The type of name desired is one that is suggested by the locality of Brainerd or of some animal common to this part of the country. In fact, any name that fits but it must be short. It must be suitable to be reproduced on the front of athletic jerseys. For example the Minneapolis teams are called the "Millers," the Hamline teams the "Pipers," the Minnesota team the "Gophers" and so on.

If you intend to enter the contest think that matter over. Details and rules will follow in next week's paper.

FRENCH CLUB TO SELL
TICKETS FOR DECLAM

Last evening the French Club enjoyed a business and social meeting. Donald Geist, president, called the meeting to order, and the minutes were read by Edith Heald, secretary. Miss Taylor announced that the French Club could undertake the selling of the tickets to the Declamatory Contest, which are to be 10c, to be held here in the early part of February. This project was undertaken by the Semper Paratus last year. Every student is expected to buy one.

After the short business meeting a most enjoyable program was given. Kathryn Sheets, accompanied by Miss Rickard at the piano, sang "Roses of Yesterday" and "My Bouquet of Memories." Second on the program was two violin solos rendered by Victor Bourgeois, accompanied by Kathryn Allbright at the piano. He played "Sonny Boy" and "To Do the Rasseon." Another entertainer was Howard Giles and his trombone; he played two selections. Miss Rickard played a gentle accompaniment on the piano. Last but not least were three readings and a poem. All proved very humorous after once translated. Miss Taylor gave these first in French and then in English. Many games were played after the program, the leading ones were flinch and bunco. After the games refreshments, consisting of sandwiches, fruit salad and lemonade, were served. The refreshments proved to be the climax of the evening after which everyone left for home very tired but very happy.

Extra sweeping! Extra fires! Are they willing? Who inquires? They must meet with our desires, Understand!

No, we heard their cheery whistle and we like them, for They call most of us by name, Cheer our fortunes, hide our shame Proper candidates for fame— Jolly Janitors.

FRESHIES BARRED BY
HI-Y CONSTITUTION

The ratification of the new constitution was the chief business before the Senior Hi-Y club at the weekly meeting last Wednesday.

The session opened with the usual reading of the minutes and a report by the treasurer. After a short debate it was agreed that three tardies were to equal one absence and might be counted as such. Next in order was the reading and ratification of the new constitution.

The first two articles concerning the name and affiliations of the club were accepted without being challenged, but the first section of the third, dealing with the requirements for admittance of new members was hotly and lengthily contested. After a fiery debate lasting almost 45 minutes a vote showed that a majority of the club favored leaving the Frosh out of the club rather than admitting them as the constitution committee had recommended.

The constitution was laid on the table because of a lack of time, and the meeting adjourned.

EVANGELINE DOES

THE PAUL REVERE

WITH APOLOGIES TO LONG-
FELLOW

Listen friend schoolmate, and you shall hear
Of a girl whose fame's gone far and near,
On the twentieth of April in twenty nine,
For Evangeline Croats we all did pine.
She said, "Friend, if annuals are sold tonight,
Hang a lantern aloft as a signal light
In the assembly window where all can see,
And I across the street will be,
Ready to run in wild alarm
To a certain excited farmer's farm."
Then she said goodnight and with stately tread,
Silently towards her home she fled.
Meanwhile her friend, through alley and street
Wonders and watches with eager ears,
Till in the darkness around her she hears
The sound of someone shedding tears.
She knows this means the annuals are sold.
This sad tale to her friend must be told,
She climbed the stairs with stealthy tread,
To the assembly chamber overhead,
By the trembling stairways, steep and tall,
To the highest window in the wall,
There she paused a moment to look down,
Silently o'er the roofs of the town.
Evangeline stood across the street,
Her heart near stifled her with its beat.
She looks at the assembly, and lo as she gazes,
A light in the Assembly window blazes,
You know the rest; it's as Carl Zapfe said,
To Gilbert Lake she turned and fled
But her death was not, as you think in vain,
For the twenty nine annual is on sale again!
So profit my friend, by her demise,
Pay your fifty cents and show you're wise.

After a great deal of coaxing, persuasion and cajoling—why they even went so far as to plead!—the Sophomores have at last managed to pay $14 on their debt for the Brainonian Annual. They have attended meetings regularly and handed well written articles in on time with no thought of reward other than that of helping the paper and the school. The Brainonian sincerely wishes there were staff positions for the following, each of whom really deserves more than mere recognition: Helen Sheets, Mildred Johnson, Mary Hawkins, Alice Nolan, Margaret Vadnais, Orris Larson, Ross Olmsted, Edman Jernberg and Carl Zapfe.

It is hoped that there will be enough vacancies in the Brainonian next year to make each one a reporter or an editor; but they must, for the present at least, be content with the appreciation of the whole staff.

ENGINE CARRIES CAR, OCCUPANTS 90 FEET

Three Receive Medical Attention Here After Freak Accident on N. P. Crossing
NO SERIOUS INJURIES

Four People Receive Shakeup and Thrill Ride on Cowcatcher

A Whippet sedan with four occupants was carried ninety feet on the cowcatcher of a Northern Pacific railway freight engine here yesterday afternoon.

Although three of the occupants received medical attention in Brainerd no serious injuries were reported.

The engine stopped five feet from a switch which had it struck would have demolished the car and caused serious injury or possibly death to the occupants.

The accident occurred about 4 p. m. yesterday on the grade crossing in West Brainerd on Highways No. 2 and 19. The car driven by Frank Topp, of Motley, to Brainerd was struck as it was crossing the track and carried along the track on the cowcatcher for a distance of 90 feet. The train was going west.

Mr. and Mrs. Topp and their daughter, Mrs. Fred Siegert, Jr., of Hunter, N. D., received medical attention here after the accident. Mrs. Siegert's husband escaped with minor bruises.

Mr. Topp stated that he did not see the freight train coming until he was almost on the track.

The car was brought to Brainerd for repairs.

TWO CENT GAS CUT ANNOUNCED TODAY

Brainerd Stations Follow Move of Chief Oil Companies Serving Northwest

Gas went down two cents a gallon in Brainerd today.

The reduction followed close on the heels of United Press dispatches that principal oil companies serving the northwest were cutting prices.

Officials stated that the reduction was brought about through a gradual decline in refinery prices.

The new price of gas in Brainerd announced today by the major companies was 19.1 for low test and 22.1 for high test. Tank wagon prices were cut one cent a gallon.

BAND TO FEATURE CONVENTION SONGS

American Legion Auxiliary Band to Give Concert at U. C. T. Auditorium

SATURDAY EVENING

Park Rapids Drum Corps Group to Render "The Thunderer"

In the concert to be given Saturday evening at the U. C. T. auditorium, the American Legion Auxiliary band will present music featured by the band at the Legion conventions attended during the past season. At these conventions no music is more popular than the "war songs." They are listened to attentively, and it was the experience of the band that they were most enjoyed when used as accompaniment for singing.

Much as these songs are used, no group of them is published for band, therefore, the American Legion Auxiliary band is fortunate in being able to find a man who could make such an arrangement as J. Knapp of Crosby has made.

Before the band left for San Antonio, R. G. Jenkins wrote seven songs to be used en route and at conventions. The evening of the concert he will present the individual members of the band by singing the "Introductory Song." The band will sing his parody on the old popular song, "San Antonio."

At the national convention there is no time, place nor occasion for formal music as represented by an overture, but at the state convention each band played several formal numbers. No music at Austin received more enthusiastic applause than Al Mraz's singing of "Ramona" accompanied by the band. He is one of the most popular "buddies" in the State American Legion and holds the office of district adjutant and is a member of the state music committee.

The "convention" group is closed with a military drill while playing "Our Director March." This is the march the band played at the national convention as it passed the reviewing stand on the day of the big parade. In the stand were General Pershing and General Hines, Lord and Lady Allenby, Lady Churchill

Gov. Dan Moody and other prominent national and international figures. Capt. E. B. Miller of Co. "L," 206th Infantry, Park Rapids, has supervised the training of the band for the drill. He is drum major of the Park Rapids drum corps. At the state convention this corps won second place in the drum corps contest. This honor reflects no little credit on Capt. Miller and his men as there were 15 drum corps competing, including St. Paul. He also won first place in the bugling contest, and as prize received a silver bugle.

Preceding the "Our Directors March" by the band, "The Thunderer" will be played by four men from the Park Rapids drum corps. As an interlude between the first and second parts of the program, a short Americanization program will be put on by six men from Co. "L," 206th Infantry.

OPERATION OF U. S. AIR MAIL FILMED

For a Real Air Picture "The Flying Fleet," Just Can't be Beat

SHOWING AT LYCEUM

Production Gives an Accurate View of Uncle Sam's Method of Schooling

Uncle Sam's method of turning out seafaring Lindbergh's is shown in a most interesting way in Metro-Goldwyn's newest air film, "The Flying Fleet," now playing the Lyceum as one of the features in Prize Week.

One might truthfully say the picture is a "wow" for it is without question the cleverest air film turned out.

With Ramon Novarro, and Ralph Graves, and their four buddies it takes one through the various stages of Uncle Sam's school, from Annapolis to the ground school at San Diego based on the actual air training station at Pensacola, returning again to San Diego.

It leaves one with the experience that he has gone through the mili. has become one of Uncle Sam's fliers and is participating in the excitement of maneuvers in the billowy ether.

by appearing principally in a one piece bathing suit.

"The Flying Fleet" is one film of the year that should be seen for educational purposes if for no other reason.

It is a picture that reveals the type of manhood selected for the country's air defense.

The greatest thrill comes in Novarro's method of rescue of the California to Honolulu fliers. It's corking.

LEGION QUINT WINS FOUR GAMES IN SEVEN

TEAM RETURNS FROM A STRENUOUS ROAD TOUR OF 600 MILES

HEIKKINEN INJURED IN BOVEY GAME; RETURNS TO SQUAD IN LAST TWO GAMES

LOCALS WIN TWO OF THREE GAMES WITH BAGLEY; DEFEAT AITKIN, MARBLE

The Brainerd American Legion team returned to Brainerd tired and worn out from a seven-day trip which covered six hundred miles, winning four games out of seven.

Injuries handicapped the locals from boosting their win column still better but considering all, they made a very successful showing.

Lester Peterson, manager, filled in on two games after Heikkinen received an injury in the second encounter. Heikkinen returned to the ranks for the last two games and was instrumental in recording wins for the locals on those occasions.

Whitlock and Marshall bore the brunt of the burden on the offense. Nutting also played a great offensive game. DeRoche and Heikkinen held down the defense with Marshall going to a guard position and Peterson to forward in the three games Heikkinen was out because of injuries.

The best reception accorded the locals was shown at Keewatin.

EXPECT YANKEES TO WIN AGAIN

JACKIE FIELDS AS OPPONENT FOR DUNDEE

Chicago, Jan. 29. (U.P.)—Jackie Fields, by a victory last night over Jack McCarthy of Chicago, stepped forward today as the most logical opponent for Welterweight Champion Joe Dundee.

Fields gave McCarthy a boxing lesson and showed himself to be fairly fast but his alleged knock-out punch failed to put in an appearance. McCarthy took a beating which made his face resemble a piece of beefsteak.

Fields' right for a meeting with Dundee is backed up by victories over Jack Thompson and Sergeant Sammy Baker.

ELKS NO. 2 AND BYE CLOTHING CO. STAGE INTERESTING COMBAT; ELKS WIN 2

Every Elks No. 1 bowler was 530 or over while Rardin had the only 500 count for Smraker's.

McGarry, with 540, was high for Elks No. 2, and Nesheim with 515, was high for the Bye team.

This evening the Sinclair Oils meet the Lions Club, and the Study Club and Peterson Clothing Co. team will roll for added money.

SEC. BARRON OF THE CLUB IS VERY CONFIDENT

PREDICTS AMERICAN LEAGUE RESULTS FOR COMING SEASON

PHILADELPHIA IN 2ND PLACE, THEN WASHINGTON, DE-TROIT, ST. LOUIS

By GEORGE KIRKSEY (United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, Jan. 29. —The New York Yankees will win the American League pennant again, according to Edward G. Barrow, secretary and general manager of the club.

He said that Hans Wagner is the greatest baseball player of all time and the Chicago White Sox of 1919 were the best team in history. Then he names his all-time baseball team, leaving off Eddie Collins and Rube Waddell among others.

Barrow predicts the American League will end the coming season as follows:

1. New York.
2. Philadelphia.
3. Washington.
4. Detroit.
5. St. Louis.
6. Cleveland.
7. Chicago.
8. Boston.

"The Yankees will be stronger in the infield," Barrow says. "I think Lyn Lary will be a success at short and Mark Koenig will play better ball at third. Tony Lazzeri will report in good shape and Herb Pennock will turn in 20 victories."

Barrow thinks the five greatest players of all time, ranked in order, are:

1. Hans Wagner.
2. Ty Cobb.
3. Larry Lajoie.
4. Babe Ruth.
5. Tris Speaker.

Barrow saw the famous Baltimore Orioles and practically all of the great teams in the National League as well as American League, but he ranks the White Sox of 1919 as the greatest team of all time and the Boston Red Sox of 1916 as second best.

Only three National League players are placed on Barrow's all-time team which follows:

- First base—Hale Chase.
- Second base—Larry Lajoie.
- Third base—Jimmy Collins.
- Shortstop—Hank Wagner.
- Left field—Ty Cobb.
- Center field—Tris Speaker.
- Right field—Babe Ruth.
- Catcher—Ray Chaik.

Pitchers—Walter Johnson, Christy Mathewson, Herb Pennock.

ASSAULTS JOURNALISTS AND POLITICIANS

Iowa City, Ia., Jan. 29. —(U.P.)—Journalists and politicians are examples of the type of mankind with destructive minds, according to Dr. Edward Steiner, professor of applied religion at Grinnell college. In an address before the Chamber of Commerce here, Dr. Steiner divided mankind into two groups—those with constructive and those with destructive minds. Statesmen and historians are in the former class, he said.

Impatient Griselda

by Dorothy Scarborough

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

HANDSOME Quinn Holden, young minister, newly arrived in a small Texas town, was unaware of the deep love borne for him by Irene Robinson, one of his parishioners. He married the gay and coquettish Lilith, a beautiful bit of femininity, whose boast was that "every boy in town had proposed to her at least twice." A year later Lilith died at childbirth. The infant, also named Lilith, is her father's greatest joy, but suffers from lack of proper care. Irene, tortured by Quinn's worries and still devoted to him, rejects the marriage proposal of Will Lundy, town doctor, who had been keeping company with her, and, according to Mattie Anson, village gossip, would make a good match. Irene tells Will of her secret love for the minister. She asks Will to champion the clergyman's cause in a clash with the deacons over the expulsion of a member who got drunk. Irene, rounding up younger people for the meeting saw Holden upheld. After little Lilith is made sick Holden appeals to Irene, who has become his adviser on child matters. He asks her to marry him. Irene is ecstatically happy, but then saddened when she finds his mind and heart set on the child alone.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XV.
THE first few weeks of her married life were a test of Irene's powers of adjustment. The shivering intensity of her dreams had ill prepared her for the pallid unsubstantiality of the real life she met, for though she had thought she comprehended and accepted the fact that Quinn loved her less than she loved him, yet she had never fully faced the truth. Her unconquerable optimism had borne her with the belief that the ceremony of marriage would work a miracle, would change his materialistic need of her to a passionate romance, would give her the love she had waited for in patience through these difficult years. Surely such emotions as she felt for him spiritualized yet passionate, intellectual yet wildly romantic, could not fail to meet return.

Surely marriage would weld them so completely that she would not even need to tell him how she loved him, for he would know her feelings by his own. But day after day she was to realize that nearness did not bring oneness. Fidelity never brought her the expression that she craved, and never in waking hours did she know the poignancy of her dreams. Sometimes when he held her in his arms and pressed his lips to her, she felt him as remote from her in spirit as the stars, and she shivered with loneliness. She missed him most when he was with her. When he was away from her she could delude herself with dreams that he loved her. When he was with her, she knew he still loved to him she couldn't tell him how she felt. Pride lay like a sword between them.

But she had married him and she loved him utterly, so that she would spend her strength to make their life together something beautiful and valuable to him, even if he did not prize it. Soon he told her the truth, she told herself, and all would be well between them.

He was so gentle, so considerate of her—in matters that were of no importance at all—he seemed to feel so satisfied with his husbandly attitude toward her, that she wouldn't make him feel bad by revealing his shortcomings. When he had changed, when time had given him understanding so that he loved her as she loved him, then she could tell him with a humorous affection of how he had failed her at first. Husband had to be trained, so she must have patience. In the meantime, while she waited for her husband to come to her, there were the practical details of their life together that must be adjusted. Irene attacked these problems of her new life with wobbly knees and a determined but pounding heart. She found the housekeeping in the sad state of a house that for a year had no mistress, and for a year before that a mistress who cared nothing for it. While the ladies' aid sat about in corners

"You men just can't appreciate fancy work," Irene told him.

"Such an awful waste of time," she gazed at the objects. "Well, I wouldn't spend my days doing all that, but then my time is more valuable than the Ladies' Aiders'. I'm married to the minister."

He grinned boyishly, and made a gesture as if to kiss her, while she waited breathlessly. This kiss now, maybe, would be the one for which she had longed.

"Lilith's bumped her nose!" he cried and rushed off to investigate, leaving the kiss as unfinished business.

The girls of the Sunday school gave them a kitchen shower—bright new pots and pans, egg beaters that whirled merrily around, all sorts of fancy spoons, perforated, slatted, plain; colanders, sieves, toasters; a shining array that made a gay piece of the kitchen Aunt Viny had allowed to grow dingy and shabby.

"Some sense to these gifts," Guinn allowed.

The Baptist Young People's Union, or the B. Y. P. U. as it was called for short, gave the pastor and his wife a surprise party at the parsonage one Saturday evening. It was a "Pound Party," the idea being that each guest was to bring a pound of some food, a contribution to the ministerial cupboard. The evening was hilarious.

But at the end of the festivity, Irene gazed at her ravaged kitchen. The B. Y. P. U. had eaten far more than they had brought in—her cake for Sunday, the batch of gingersnaps that Guinn loved, the fudge—all had vanished, leaving only lonesome crumbs.

Her lions had gone for lemonade to piece out the refreshments, the milk had been made into chocolate.

Guinn gave a glance around. "We didn't break even, did we?" "No. As a pantry proposition it is a mournful failure. But the B. Y. P. U. had a good time."

The Ladies' Aid helped her to do over the house. That scheme had its drawbacks, however, since the Aiders, while energetic in helping make curtains and hem sheets, were equally forceful in urging their advice upon the bride. But she was firm in her insistence on her own plans, though diplomatic in her dealings with the church dowagers and spinsters.

"Every girl has dreams of having her house just so and so," she apologized. "Mothers always say, 'Wait till you have your own house,' and they don't give the girls a chance."

She firmly clutched each detail of her dream plans, determined that her house should come up to specifications, even if her marriage might be still lacking in some aspects of perfection. She let the Ladies' Aiders work hard, to even up, and praised them for their efficiency.

When they had finished, they agreed that her plans were good. The deacons had gallantly forgiven Irene for thrusting herself into church discipline, because they greeted a woman the right to capture her husband by any means she could, and so they had the parsonage painted on the outside to match the new interior.

"Nice old men, the deacons," she exulted.

The house stood gay and wistful in its bright new order, with fresh paint and paper, newly stained floors, some new pieces of furniture, and the rest done over. Good rugs were on the floor, a few good pictures here and there, and an air of cozy comfort throughout, a restful beauty that the parsonage had never known before.
